THOUSANDS INVADE CITY FOR ICE FETE

Banquet Opened Festival

Approximately 100 Pay
Tribute to Queen
Friday Night.

Nearly one hundred persons applauded as Queen Cora Lewis made her debut at the annual banquet held in Shoppenagons Inn last night.

Miss Lewis was the recipient of a beautiful black and white snow suit, a gift from Winter Sports Incorporated.

President Dr. C. R. Keyport presided over the gathering as toastmaster and introduced, to open the program Mrs. C. G. Clippert and Mrs. Roy Milnes who sang "Only a Rose" and "Sweet Mystery of Life."

Speaker for the evening was Edgar M. Woods, state editor of the Bay City Times. Mr. Woods commended Grayling on their endeavors in the winter sports field and encourages further similar undertakings.

President Keyport introduced the Queen's Court following the presentation of the snow suit to Her Majesty.

King Gillette sang two numbers to close the evening's festivities. They were "I Heard You Singing" and "Bless this House." He was accompanied by Mrs. Clippert.

In Summer It's Canoe Fete

Attractions Of Grayling
Know No Single Season

While Grayling lays its main claim to glory in the annual staging of its winter sports carnival, summer-time also finds the community basking in a favorite place in the sun of publicity—the canoe carnival.

Winding downward to the lake from Grayling, the historic AuSable river each summer is made the best of burden for a lengthy flotilla of canoes and river boats that wind their way along the twisting channel of the old river down one of the most beautiful stretches of the north country.

Surging through the valleys of the majestic Crawford county hills—verdant with their summer dress; twisting through old scenes of lumbering activity where the piles of abandoned railroads that once pierced the marsh lands stand like gaunt reminders of days that were; flowing slowly through steep canyons of colorful green; past summer homes of boundless luxury, the canoe caravan—if such it can be called—becomes a pathway into the past for one can blot out the present and live for the time in the world reconstructed by memory.

To those sentimentally inclined—who can hear the rhythmic swish of Indian paddles dipping deftly into the swift-flowing current, who can see the lumber camps of the legendary Paul Bunyan teeming with life in the abandoned swamplands, who can see the redman slinking along the narrow pathway skirting the bending river channel—to such the Grayling canoe carnival is a pleasant diversion, a trip into the past.

Rooms at a Premium

Late arrivals were finding themselves engaged in an almost futile search for housing accommodations as Grayling officially opened its carnival last night.

Both local hotels and most of the tourist homes were taxed to capacity and indications were that almost today would find every available room in the village occupied for the festival.

At the Shoppenagons Inn rooms were at a premium, the last having been reserved a week or ten days ago.

Many local folks had thrown their houses open to guests and friends, however, and everyone appeared to be taken care of for the three day stand.

Fitzgerald Lauds Snow Carnival

The Grayling Winter Sports committee today had received from Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald a hearty message of congratulations upon the endeavor of this community to make Grayling snow a bigger attraction than Florida sunshine. In a telegram to Dr. C. R. Keyport, president of the Grayling Winter Sports Association, the governor stated:

"Congratulations on the successful winter sports carnival. I hope that you can make snow and ice as popular in your part of the state as sunshine is in Florida. Also hope that you will continue to be as good a friend of mine as a promoter of winter sports carnivals.

"Signed, Frank D. Fitzgerald, Governor of Michigan."

Even Ol' Sol Pays Tribute

Caro Remembers Time
Winter Came In Summer

They still talk in Caro about the time it snowed in summer—or, almost snowed, to be exact. And Grayling, home of the winter sports carnival, played a leading role in the drama.

It was the night of the big parade, held in conjunction with the ceremonies for the selection of a sugar beet queen. Held in August, summer regalia was naturally the trend of the evening—much to the discomfiture of queen contestants and guests who had thronged to the fairgrounds while the mercury cascaded.

The sting of winter was in the air as the long parade of gaily bedecked floats passed the grandstands, the envy of all eyes being the attractive snow suit worn by Miss Lulu Malonen, 1934 winter sports queen of Grayling, who participated in the Caro show as the good will representative of the north country.

Stepping lightly from the float to the queen's platform, after an introduction by "Circus Jack" Davis, who felt more than a little pride in presenting the queen of the winter show, "Miss Grayling" was the recipient of the loudest applause given any of the queen delegates, the delegation including Huron's bean queen, East Thaw's summer queen, Romeo's peace queen, and Flint's beauty queen. And to this day, Caro hasn't forgotten the summer winter came along with the visit of the snow queen.

Grayling Assumes Big Task

Eastern Michigan's Lone
Center of Winter
Sports

Assuming lone responsibility for entertainment and encouragement of winter travel and pleasure trips into the unequalled playgrounds of Eastern Michigan, Grayling has assumed a place of giant stature among the resort meccas of the Middle West.

Through promotion of the winter sports carnival over a period of ten years, this community now boasts an investment of something more than $50,000 in its winter sports park where facilities have been provided for fun-making at tobogganing, bob-sledding, skating, and skiing—winter-time enjoyment that reaches its peak at the time of the carnival, the tenth of which will be held this week end.

A casual study and review has shown Grayling's position in this respect to be unique, entirely without comparison in its aggressive program with any community of like size. Newspapersmen, throughout the state, have credited the success and continuance of the Grayling winter sports to the native characteristics of the good people of the north country—and that with good reason. Stick-to-it-iveness best represents the foremost virtue of that trait. The people of this area—hailing largely from Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian extraction—know that the rainbow that stretches all the way from the hope to the pot of gold is an unbroken round of hard work made glorious by its careful blending of cooperation.

Grayling's winter sports idea has not been blessed since its inception. Probably more so than any other festival ever conceived it has been a gamble—with the weather and also with the financial problem, for the staging of so vast an enterprise as the Grayling winter sports carnival is a costly affair.

Year after year, the Weather Man has taken unholy delight in blazing forth with all his glory on the day or the day preceding the winter sports show—the snow necessary for the fun-making flowing away in rivulets. Year after year, red ink had to be used to balance the treasury's books for the season. Year after year it appeared that the final closing of the show was imperative—a mere matter of time.

But the iron will and the perseverance that the men of the north have to put to work to seek out their existence from the soil and from other channels unlined with gold definitely curtailed any possibility of a discontinuance of the show. The show went on, and today the show still goes on—like Barnum's circus—Bigger and Better than Ever.

The continued staging of the winter sports carnival, of which this weekend is an example, is a great credit to this community—one that bespeaks a laurel of tribute to every resident of the area who has raised a finger to help the affair along.

The Queen of the Grayling Snow Show

Queen Cora Is Majestic Ruler of Snow Festival

Selected by unanimous ballot at the Rialto Theatre last Sunday afternoon by a group of non-partisan judges, pretty, brunette Miss Cora Lewis, local school teacher, will reign as Queen of the Tenth Annual Winter Sports Carnival.

Miss Lewis is a graduate of Central State Teachers College, having first attended Alma College before taking her tutoring work at the Normal. She was graduated from the Mt. Pleasant school in 1932.

"Her majesty" is 22-years-old. Miss Lewis survived one of the most spirited elections in the history of Grayling Winter Queens. Voting polls were conducted in Lovells, Frederic, and at the local postoffice. Twenty-three names were on the ballot. From that list the seven receiving the highest number of votes were considered nominated and taken to the theatre for the final judging Sunday afternoon.

Those included in the final selection, the remainder of whom are to make up the Queen's Court are Miss Lewis, Helen May, Dorothy Roberts, Lela Gierke and Florence Kellogg, all of Grayling and Jennie Lee Raymond and June Horner of Frederic.

Judges brought in from the outside to insure the best selection on a non-partisan basis were M. King Gillette, Kiwanis field representative of Chicago; Dr. Ernest Kellerman, Kalkaska; Miss Helen Bradley and Mrs. W. F. Hyatt Jr., of the Bay City Times and Ben Wright of the East Michigan Tourist Association.

Miss Lewis won the first place ballot of all five judges. She succeeds Lulu Malonen, 1934 Queen.

Miss Lewis Wednesday night was the guest of the East Michigan Tourist Association in Bay City where she spoke over station WBCM of the Michigan Radio Network on a state-wide hookup. Miss Lewis appealingly invited all Michigan and the middle west to come to Grayling and play this week end.

Grayling Wins Over Alpena

Overtime Game Ends In
20 to 24 Decision
For Localites

With a final spurge of carnival-born enthusiasm, the Grayling high school basketball team edged out a narrow overtime victory, 24-20, over a fast team from Alpena at the high school gymnasium here Friday evening.

Evenly matched throughout, the score at the half of the game—the nightcap event of the opening day's program of the Tenth annual winter sports carnival—was 11 to 10 at the half with Alpena in the lead. In the final half, Grayling came back to even the score necessitating the overtime playoff giving the winter sports capital's team the victory.

Mauna (Kiki) Cuyler, Northeastern Michigan's contribution to major league baseball, was referee of the game. Previous to the contest, Cuyler was a guest at the tenth annual winter sports banquet at Shoppenagons Inn.

Kelly of the Alpena team was high scorer of the evening, accounting for 10 of Alpena's 20 points. Hanson and Lovely, of Grayling, were close rivals, chalking up eight points apiece for the Grayling basketekers.

Grayling a Picture of Festivity

As crowds begin filtering into Grayling from every point in the middle west, the village presents a gaily picture of festivity, the result of night and day work by "Circus" Jack Davis and his crew of decorators.

Davis has long been the official "dresser up" for Northeastern Michigan carnivals and shows. His career in relation to Grayling dates far back into the 1900's when he was first initiated to the beauties of the region with a circus troupe then touring Michigan.

Working with Davis on the Grayling assignment are Whitey Keipert and Woody Jarvis, both of whom, along with their employer, have been especially friendly and liberal with the village in all their dealings.

Mr. Davis is also the creator of the floats that will make up the parade to the Winter Sports Park today. He will act as Master of Ceremonies, a capacity not at all foreign to him, at the presentation and crowning of the queen tonight.

Grayling In State Spotlight

Ideal Conditions Prevail
For Tenth Grayling
Snow Carnival

If Old Man Winter stays kind for just twenty-four hours more Grayling's Tenth Annual Winter Carnival will go down in history as the most successful of its kind ever staged in this city.

Every detail for the great show has been carefully worked out by the most cooperative committees Grayling has ever known.

Festivities officially opened last night with the highly successful Queen's banquet. The program of sliding, skating and jumping will get under way this morning.

Parade Opens Show.

At 1 p. m. today a gigantic parade will wind its way toward Winter Sports Park as a forerunner to a program packed with entertainment. The line of march forms in the city and after parading the streets will head toward the park. Gaily decorated by the artistic Jack Davis, the floats promise to provide one of the highlights of the 1935 carnival. Many are coming in from outside, merchants who have a sympathetic interest in Grayling and its activities.

Woods Presents Queen

At the park Queen Cora Lewis will be informally presented to the throng of sports-minded snow show patrons by Edgar M. Woods, state editor of the Bay City Times. Jack Davis will serve as Master of Ceremonies. The impressive ceremony is designed to insure everyone an opportunity of viewing the Queen and her Court on the gorgeous throne.

Shortly following the presentation an elaborate program of races and exhibitions will be held. On the program are races for both junior boy and girl skaters, speed and fancy skating, ski-jumping by a troupe of professional leapers headed by Carl Anderson, well known West Branch and Ann Arbor artist; and ice hockey. In addition, all facilities at the park will be open to public use. The slides, weather permitting, should be the fastest in history and the rinks are in excellent shape.

Throne Lighted.

Saturday evening the entire park will again be open to sliding, skating and ski-jumping, but the high spot of the evening is at 8:30 when, under the spectacular lighting and shadows of the 4200-ice-Cake throne the Star of the North will be presented the Queen by Edgar M. Woods. It will be the official night presentation of Miss Lewis and her court.

At 9:30 the Coronation ceremonies begin at the High School. Prior to the traditional Queen's ball, a short program is planned. Dynamic Jack Davis will again rolick through the program as Master of Ceremonies.

McDonald To Official.

Glenn McDonald, newly-appointed editor of the Bay City Times, will place the coveted crown on the Queen, following which the Queen's ball will get officially under way.

Committeemen remind Grayling visitors that the ball is not an obligatory dress-up affair, rather winter sports clothes in keeping with the theme of the entire occasion are encouraged.

All throughout the Queen's maneuvers her court will consist of Helen May, Dorothy Roberts, Lela Gierke and Florence Kellogg of Grayling and Jennie Lee Raymond and June Horner of Frederic. Costumes for the court are being designed by a committee of Woman's club members.

Tomorrow Big Day.

Sunday sees the biggest day at the Park. It is then most patrons invade Grayling for a day of real winter activity. Though many arrive in Grayling on Friday and Saturday the bulk of the crowd (Continued on next page) activity in Michigan, that those under 18 years of age are not sufficiently adjusted mentally, emotionally, or physically to compete with adult labor are contributing factors to this situation.

Abolition of child labor on account of the operation of codes adopted under the N.R.A. resulted last year in an unusual increase of 100,000 pupils in the high schools of this country. This was in addition to the normal increase of 200,000. The increase in high school enrollments is especially significant because at this point in the school program the costs are relatively high. School authorities this year are face to face with the problem of providing schools for about 800,000 more children than were enrolled in 1930 with a half billion dollars less money.

What is the relation between these facts and the "youth movement" in Michigan?

With the length of the school year reduced in most districts; with 3,500 less teachers employed than in 1930-31; despite increased enrollment of approximately 50,000; with essential parts of the instructional program eliminated; with textbooks and school supplies curtailed; with overcrowded classrooms and deteriorated school plants; and with the morale of the teachers seriously impaired by overloaded schedules and salary reductions of approximately seven million dollars during each of the last three years, there is only one direction the "youth movement" can take.

Juvenile Court Statistics of the Children's Bureau for 1930 showed that 60 per cent of the cases involved children between the ages of 12 and 16. The educational plan in operation at the Jackson state prison places approximately 30 per cent of the prisoners in or below the sixth grade. Every community has its problem of the unadjusted child before he becomes a settled criminal, and the physically handicapped.

The Youth Movement

"The Youth Movement!" Much is being said and written about it today. Eloquent gray-haired speakers everywhere proclaim from the platform that the "youth of today will be the leaders of tomorrow," and envision an Utopian future as the results of their honesty, integrity, and experience. An examination by these speakers of the real facts concerning the youth situation might occasion alarm rather than optimism, and doubt be expressed as to the direction in which the "youth movement" is going.

Since society has been continually changing and evolving, new conditions are constantly arising. Several social and economic factors have produced radical changes in public schools. Most obvious is the rapid increase in the total population of Michigan, which made a shift to the industrial centers. Between 1900 and 1930 the population of this state showed an increase of 100 per cent. In consequence a series of problems on the providing of education facilities for the children was produced.

To meet the housing need for the rapidly increasing number of children necessitated expenditures for capital outlay at a time when competition with other building projects created high prices. A survey of any of the larger Michigan cities will show that the building program of the past decade was badly needed for even today hundreds of children are housed in basement rooms, temporary buildings, or are on half day sessions.

A recent national survey of child labor during the depression period revealed a general movement of youth toward the schoolroom. In 1930 there was a decrease of 34 per cent in the number of 14 and 15 year-old children leaving school for work. Rigidity of child labor laws and a general feeling among employers, especially those in the automobile industry, a basic manufacturing

Officers. Such a system is expensive, inefficient, and antiquated. The election of a State Board of Education similar to a district elected Board of Education, and the selection of the Superintendent of Public Instruction by this Board would be in direct accord with the idea that public schools are non-political.

Another and important factor in the wise directing of youth movements would be the restoration of teacher morale by a general restriction of teacher certification, both through a reduction in the number of teacher training institutions in the state and through the elimination of less promising candidates for teaching certificates.

Many factors, such as heredity, mental ability, leisure time activities, lying outside the school may affect the youth but exceedingly important is the work of the school in establishing right job habits, right health habits, and right character habits previous to their entrance into community activities and industry.

What kind of a "youth movement" does your community face?

pute to its appearance Sunday morning early, to remain through until night should the snow set.

Races, exhibitions, ski-jumps, sliding, skating, sifting, bob-sledging, and every imaginable form of snow activity are on the Sunday program. Snow shoes, bob-sleds, toboggans and skis may be obtained at the park club house and there will be a constant fire in the adjoining building to warm the sport enthusiasts.

Too, on Sunday, there will be a costume skating contest and participants are requested to come prepared and dressed for the occasion.

Throughout the day the queen and her court will be in evidence on the grounds and many activities are planned for the group. Traverse City-Petoskey Meet.

Foiled at the last moment in its hopes of getting Detroit skaters, the committee was fortunate in lining up two of the fastest hockey teams in the north for its ice game. And, incidentally, the clubs are traditional rivals. Petoskey and Traverse City are the foes for the hockey attraction. Good fast games are in store.

The skaters also come from Petoskey and Secretary McDonald of the Chamber of Commerce of that city promises the blade artists are exceptionally good.

With such an array of activity Grayling is promised its greatest Winter Carnival in history.

Snow Throne a Vast Creation

Four thousand two hundred huge, heavy cakes of ice—that's what was required to build the Queen's throne now adorning the peninsula between the two rinks at Winter Sports Park.

The accomplishment is the work of Johnny Deckrow, local ice sculptor. His work has been the envy of Snow Show patrons for many years.

Johnny is one of the CWA workers whose patient efforts have built and rebuilt the slides and rinks at the park when time and again warm weather and thaws reduced hours of careful, well-planned labor to a nothingness.

Ice sculpting is a hobby with Deckrow. He has been building the Grayling thrones for years. Though one cannot rightfully say the work is unappreciated, few fully realize the weeks of planning required before the task is attempted. And all for a few short days of winter spectacle. For months Deckrow mauls the pencilled blueprints over in his ingenious mind, devising new means of constructing a throne that will always be bigger and better than the previous year. When it is completed he gets the satisfaction all artistically-inclined individuals sense—the completed realization of an idea.

In John Deckrow, Grayling possesses an indispensable individual. Without his Ice Art the Winter Carnival would not be complete. Too much credit for the spectacle cannot be accorded the local sculptor.

Fete Well Advertised

Grayling Winter Sports have been especially well advertised this year through the wholehearted cooperation of the Bay City Times and the East Michigan Tourist Association.

Almost constantly the Times has had Edgar M. Woods, state editor and staff photographer, on the job writing daily stories and planning pictorial layouts for the carnival. The Times has always been unusually kind to Grayling on occasion of anything it attempts along the festival line.

Similarly, the Tourist association has had a representative in Grayling practically all of the time for the last month. Through the Log Office and State Resort Commission efforts of T. F. Marston, secretary-manager of the Development Bureau and Tourist Association, Grayling was the recipient of a goodly portion of spot radio advertising over the entire Michigan Radio Network.

Six spot announcements relative to winter sports were carried daily from Tuesday until Sunday morning, the last one going on the air at 9:30 a. m. as a reminder that the big day at Grayling is Sunday.

Used for Food

The ostrich, it has been found, is valuable for more than feathers. A great many are kept only for their feathers, being seasonally plucked as sheep are sheared. Others are used for food. The flesh, especially if the young are fed on poultry foods, is similar to that of the turkey. The eggs, too, are edible. Also the bird is a source of pepsin.
